

PRESS RELEASE

UK pub date | 30 September 2021

Publicist | Claire Maxwell
clairesrmaxwell@googlemail.com
+44 7772 306698

Paperback £12.99

eBook £7.99

ISBN 9781911648321

Extent 192pp

The Indigo Press
50 Albemarle Street
London
W1S 4BD

publish@theindigopress.com

 @pressindigothe

 @theindigopress

 theindigopress.com

TOMORROW IS TOO LATE

AN INTERNATIONAL YOUTH
MANIFESTO FOR CLIMATE JUSTICE
EDITED BY GRACE MADDRELL

A snapshot of the radical and powerful youth climate movement - stories from all over the world showcasing why we have to act now

- A manifesto for how you can engage, educate, and inspire change for a more hopeful future
- With contributors aged between eight and twenty-five, this is an inspiring collection of essays from the most vital generation of voices in the global struggle for climate justice
- Visit our dedicated microsite containing valuable climate resources and exclusive video content: theindigopress.com/tomorrow

About the book

In Tomorrow Is Too Late, Grace Maddrell collects testimonies of activism and hope from young climate strikers, from Brazil and Burundi to Pakistan and Palestine.

These youth activists are experiencing the reality of the climate crisis, including typhoons, drought, flood, fire, crop failure and ecological degradation, and are all engaged in the struggle to bring these issues to the centre of the world stage. Their strength and determination show the urgency of their cause, and their understanding that the generations above them have failed to safeguard their environment.

About the author

Grace Maddrell first went on school strike for the climate at the age of thirteen, and has since become a passionate activist for equality and climate justice. Grace was first inspired to tweet asking for contributions to what became Tomorrow Is Too Late in November 2019, two months after marching in the September global climate justice strike.

Grace has worked with various activist groups, including Fridays for Future and the #SaveCongoRainforest, and helped co-found of Solo But Not Alone, a social media solo striker support group. Grace is home-schooled and lived in Somerset in the South West of England at the time of compiling Tomorrow Is Too Late.

Find Grace on Twitter: @ElmGrace.

Praise

'IF YOU ARE READY TO BE HUMBLLED BY THE WISDOM, WIT AND SHEER CONVICTION OF YOUTH CLIMATE ACTIVISTS, DIVE RIGHT INTO THIS BOOK.'

KATE RAWORTH, AUTHOR OF DOUGHNUT ECONOMICS

'EVERY ACTIVIST HAS A STORY TO TELL, EVERY STORY HAS A SOLUTION TO GIVE AND EVERY SOLUTION HAS A LIFE TO CHANGE.'

VANESSA NAKATE, AUTHOR OF A BIGGER PICTURE